Multi-agency Transition Protocol for young people with special education needs and disabilities from year 9 onwards

Information for parents and professionals
Introduction

The SEN Code of Practice states that:

With high aspirations, and the right support, the vast majority of children and young people can go on to achieve successful long-term outcomes in adult life.

“Local authorities, education providers and their partners should work together to help children and young people to realise their ambitions in relation to:

• higher education and/or employment - including exploring different employment options, such as support for becoming self-employed and help from supported employment agencies

• independent living - enabling people to have choice and control over their lives and the support they receive, their accommodation and living arrangements, including supported living

• participating in society - including having friends and supportive relationships, and participating in, and contributing to, the local community

• being as healthy as possible in adult life

This document describes our responsibility for and commitment to supporting young people to make a smooth and successful transition from childhood to adulthood which involves moving from children’s to adult services and from one organisation to another. It is intended for statutory and voluntary sector agencies involved in transition and for young people and their parents/carers.

It describes how the local authority, health and education providers will work together to deliver good quality transition planning and positive outcomes for these young people, and sets out the responsibilities of the following services and organisations involved in transition in Gateshead:

• Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) Service
• Information Advice and Guidance (IAG) Personal Advisors
• Looked After Children’s Teams
• Educational Psychology Service
• Special Educational Needs Improvement Team (SENIT)
• Youth Offending Team (YOT)
• The NewcastleGateshead Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG)
• Children and Young People’s Service (CYPS)
• Disabled Children’s (social care) Team
• Transitions Team (social care)
• Adult Social Care
• Schools, Further Education providers and other commissioned education and training providers and health providers
Our commitment to a good transition for all

We want to ensure that young people experience a successful transition. All services and organisations signed up to this protocol are committed to:

- making sure that young people and their families play a central role in planning for transition, by involving them at the earliest opportunity and right from the very start of the transition process wherever possible;
- listening to young people and their family about what is important to them and involving them fully in the decisions made for and about them in order to create the best opportunities for a young person to achieve positive outcomes; This may also involve the provision of an advocate for the young person where there may be a conflict between the young person’s views and others.
- working together so that young people receive services in a seamless and timely manner;
- providing good quality information to young people, parents and carers to support them successfully through the transition process;
- signposting young people and families to advocacy/support as required;
- always having high aspirations for young people to achieve good outcomes of their choice;
- enabling young people to access appropriate local services that allow them to participate in their community; and
- Safeguarding young people and adults.

Gateshead Council and Newcastle Gateshead Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) will work in partnership as professionals and with young people with learning difficulties, disabilities and/or mental health issues and their families in order to ensure that those eligible for specialist education, care and health services receive the information and support that they need.
Our Collective Responsibilities from the SEND Code of Practice

A summary of the key points relating to our duty to enable young people who have SEN/D to prepare for adulthood is as follows:

- to support and involve the child and his or her parent, or the young person, and to have regard to their views, wishes and feelings. This includes their aspirations for adult life

- to offer advice and information directly to children and young people. This includes information and advice which supports children and young people to prepare for adult life

- to make joint commissioning arrangements about the education, health and care provision of children and young people to secure positive adult outcomes for young people with SEN

- to keep education and care provision under review including the duty to consult young people directly, and to consult schools, colleges and other post-16 providers

- to include in the Local Offer provision which will help children and young people prepare for adulthood and independent living, to consult children and young people directly about the Local Offer and to publish those comments including details of any actions to be taken

- to co-operate with FE colleges, sixth-form colleges, 16-19 academies and independent specialist colleges

- to consider the need for EHC needs assessments, prepare EHC plans where needed, and maintain and review them, including the duty to ensure that all reviews of EHC plans from Year 9 (age 13-14) onwards include a focus on preparing for adulthood and, for 19-25 year olds, to have regard to whether educational or training outcomes specified in the EHC plan have been achieved

- to make young people aware through their Local Offer of the kind of support available to them in higher education and, where a higher education place has been confirmed for a young person with an EHC plan, to pass a copy of the EHC plan to the relevant institution and to the assessor for Disabled Students Allowance with the young person’s permission.
Preparing for adulthood means preparing for:

• Further and higher education and/or employment and career progression. From exploring different employment options, such as supported employment, apprenticeships and internships, to support for becoming self-employed and help from supported employment agencies.

• Independent living. This means young people having greater choice, control and freedom over their lives and the support they have, their accommodation and living arrangements, including supported living.

• Participating in society, including having friends and supportive relationships, and participating in, and contributing to, the local community.

• Being as healthy as possible in adult life.

Successful transition should support young people through their preparation for adulthood and into greater independence. Transition can be an exciting time of new opportunities, choices and increasing independence. But for all young people, and especially for those young people who have SEN/D, it can also be a time of great anxiety, confusion and uncertainty as they move from familiar arrangements, services and people who have provided support to new relationships, places and experiences. For young people and their families, it is a crucial time to think carefully about their life and prepare for what they want to do now and in the future.

What does a good transition look like?

Pathways to getting a life:

• Having a job I enjoy
• Living in my own place
• Having a good social life with friends
• Being part of my community
• Staying fit and healthy

Definition of ‘transition’

Children and young people experience many important transitions in their lives. In this document, the term ‘transition’ mainly applies to the transition from childhood to adulthood, usually commencing at the age of 14-15 years and generally refers to the transition:

- from school to FE College, higher education or employment, training or apprenticeship;
- from college or training to employment and/or adult services;
- from paediatric to adult health services;
- from children’s social care to adult social care services*;
- from living at home to supported accommodation or living independently; and
- from leaving care or staying put.

* In responding to the needs of a young person moving into adulthood, services provided to that young person by Adult Services will be determined by assessed eligible need as set out in the Care Act 2014.
Schools and further education providers

- Reviews in Year 9 and above should pay particular attention to preparations for the transition to adulthood including employment, independent living and participation in the community.
- Following the review meeting in Year 9 an EHCP review should take place annually as per the EHCP process and an annual review report should be produced and circulated by the provider in accordance with the SEN Code of Practice.
- To support transition, schools and further education providers should share information about previous SEN provision where parents and young people have agreed to share beforehand.
- Schools, sixth form FE providers, independent and maintained schools commissioned by Gateshead Council to provide education for individual students, will convene and hold annual reviews of education and health care plans (EHCPs) or statements in accordance with the SEN Code of Practice and Gateshead Council guidance.
- With the young person’s agreement, parents/carers will be involved fully in the EHCP or statement review meeting.
- The young person must be supported to be able to take a full and active part in the review including advocacy, where required, for the young person.
- The implementation of the EHCP and intended outcomes must be monitored, ensuring that they are SMART and that actions are completed within stated timescales.
- Schools and further education providers should keep under review the reasonable adjustments they make under the Equality Act 2010 to ensure they have removed all the barriers to learning that they reasonably can.

Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) Service

- Amends all EHCPs following the review in Year 9 and above ensuring that transition planning is incorporated in the plan.
